

Theme Settings

Advanced Custom Fields (ACF) is a plugin for WordPress that allows us to create custom fields, groups, and options pages. Within the Juicebox WordPress base theme, there is a special ACF field group called "Theme Settings". This field group contains the custom fields that are added to the "Theme Settings" options page in the WordPress admin sidebar. These fields are useful for configuring settings that are used across the whole site, such as contact details, default image fallbacks, etc.

To access these theme settings within the Twig templates, you can use the `theme_option` function, which takes the name of the field as its parameter. For example, if you have a field named "phone" within the "Theme Settings" group, you can output its value within a template using the following code:

```
{{ theme_option('phone') }}
```

This will output the value of the "phone" field that was set within the "Theme Settings" page in the WordPress admin sidebar. You can use this function to output the values of any of the fields that you have added to the "Theme Settings" group using ACF.
